At 3.36 occord, during the Supland number. Not With appeared on the stage and announced that all was in readiness for the top event. He to truduced Dave Muctgomery and Helen Farmour of the "Chin-Chin" company, and they served as godparents for the buby. "Mre." Powers and the child then appeared the latlay incomed in a scenie affair which made it appear that the youngster was it a wagon. When they reached the centre of the stage the buby was led forward, while "Mrs." Powers modestly stepped back. Forty girls from the "Chis-Chis" company

"Mra." Jennie Powers of the New trooped in and the ceremony began. Mr. Montgomery placed his right hand on the baby's head. "I see," he said, "that you have two talls, also that you have a double chin Therefore, I christen thee 'Chin-Chin.'

"Me, too," said Miss Falconer. it was suggested by Mr. Wills that Mr. Montgomery kies his new gndhe blushed and retired in confusion. Little Agner McCarthy of "Hip, Hip, Hooray!" came forward at this point and gave Chin-Chin a bottle of milk. The haby went to it eagerly, while "Mra." Powers smiled. The girls from "Chin-Chin." just to show their approval began to sing, but the baby didn't mind. He was very busy with the bottle. The song finished. "Mrs." the bottle. The song finished. Mrs. Powers seemed relieved because it was all over—the christening, not the song—and grasping the baby by the trunk marched little Chin-Chin of

Later, in her dressing room, "Mrs."
Powers consented to say a few words
for The Evening World, "The Evening World,
"The ceremony went off in a de-lightfully smooth manner," she said.
"I presume this fact was due to the stage manager, arranged things, wasn' it a nice gathering? Didn't the girls look well? And, by the way, ian't Mr. Montgomery just the loveliest man. I understand he isn't marrow. We' I think' "Say, Mom," shouted little Chin-

Chin. who was in his crib near by.
"kin I have another bottle of milk?"
"No. dearie!" replied his mother.
"not until Mr. Dillingham tells his press agent. Mr. Luescher, to have you christened again."

Tattord Soldier Escapes. There was a general stir in the military reservation at Fort Hamilton yesterday when it became known that Private John Dougherty of Governor's Island, known as the "Tattoed Man." had escaped. Twenty soldiers were sent out to search the neighborhood. Dougherty's arms are covered with tattoo marks. One mark represents a tombstone under which is the inscrip-tion. "In Memory of Mother."
